

Residency Training in Diagnostic Anatomic Pathology California Animal Health & Food Safety Laboratory System University of California, Davis

The California Animal Health & Food Safety Laboratory System (CAHFS), School of Veterinary Medicine, University of California, Davis is offering a two- or three-year residency program in anatomic veterinary pathology at its San Bernardino Laboratory. The program is designed to provide anatomic pathology training for those interested in diagnostic veterinary pathology, with emphasis on production animals and horses. The training involves extensive diagnostic casework on food animals, horses, poultry, exotic avian species, and a variety of zoo, wildlife and small animal species. Residents will gain experience through interpretation of results from various laboratory disciplines (e.g. bacteriology, immunology, virology, etc.) while working up the cases. Casework is supplemented by weekly case and biopsy conferences, gross and histology rounds and seminars. Annual presentation at a national diagnostic/pathology meeting (AAVLD or ACVP) is encouraged. Successful outcome of the training program includes board certification by the American College of Veterinary Pathology (ACVP).

The current salary for the first year of the residency program is $42,216. Continuation in the program is contingent upon mutual satisfaction on the part of both the resident and the CAHFS.

Requirements include: DVM or equivalent degree and one-year of pathology experience. Must be able to effectively communicate both orally and in writing with colleagues and clients.

Applicants must submit (1) a curriculum vitae, (2) a letter of intent, (3) transcripts from veterinary school(s), and (4) three letters of recommendation to: Sharon Hein, Administrative Analyst, California Animal Health & Food Safety Laboratory System, P.O. Box 1770, University of California, Davis, CA 95617, (530) 752-8709, e-mail: slhein@ucdavis.edu. Program inquiries can be directed to Dr. Francisco Uzal at fauzal@ucdavis.edu. Materials are due by October 31, 2017.

The University of California is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer.

RESIDENCY PROGRAM BEGINS ON AUGUST 1, 2018.
